

Meet Your SNAP Work Reporting Requirements

Due to changes in federal policy, you might need to report work, education, training, and/or volunteer hours to the Pennsylvania Department of Human Services (DHS) in order to receive SNAP.

DHS is Here to Help You Meet These Requirements

There are several programs available to help you find a job, get career and technical training, or attend school at one of Pennsylvania's community colleges. These programs include:

- Keystone Education Yields Success (KEYS)
- Employment Advancement Retention Network (EARN)
- SNAP JETS (formerly called SNAP 50/50)

How can I find these programs?

- Your local county assistance office \(CAO\) can help you find a program that best meets what you are looking for and help you get enrolled.
- You can also visit the SNAP Employment & Training website or CareerLink® in-person or online to learn about job openings or trainings in your community.

Do You Need Help?
