

CWD Cooperating Processors and Taxidermists

Updated September 3, 2025

Why are there restrictions on the movement of high-risk parts?

High-risk parts contain the highest concentration of CWD prions and pose a risk of spreading CWD to other deer and elk if exposed. Therefore, regulations prohibit the removal or export of the high-risk parts of cervids harvested, taken, or killed, including by vehicular accident, from within any Disease Management Area (DMA) or Established Area (EA) within the Commonwealth unless going directly to a Game Commission approved cooperating processor or taxidermist. Regulations also prohibit the importation of the high-risk parts into Pennsylvania from any other state or Canadian province unless going directly to a Game Commission approved cooperating processor or taxidermist. The movement of high-risk carcass parts is a potential avenue through which CWD could be spread.

What are high-risk carcass parts?

High-risk carcass parts include: head (including brain, tonsils, eyes, and lymph nodes); spinal cord/backbone (vertebra); spleen; skull plate with attached antlers, if visible brain or spinal cord material is present; cape, if visible brain or spinal cord material is present; upper canine teeth, if root structure or other soft material is present; any object or article containing visible brain or spinal cord material; and brain-tanned hide.

While deer taken within the DMA can be taken to any processor or taxidermist located within that DMA, it is unlawful to remove the high-risk parts of a deer from any DMA UNLESS it is being taken to an approved location.
